Massey's Office Term Prolonged

Soviet Army Purge Hinted

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Communist party announced tonight that it has fired Marshal Georgi Zhukov from its top leadership, accusing him of developing a "cult of personality" and harming the party's role and work in the armed forces.

Expelling him from the central committee and its inner policy-making body, the presidium, the party accused the 60-year-old marshal of violating Leninist principles in guiding the armed forces.

LONDON (CP) — Hints of a mass purge of Red Army officers who supported ousted Marshal Georgi Zhukov were reaching western observers today.

Before the meeting the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said there had been attempts to reduce the role of the Communist party within the armed forces.

Sweeping changes in the command of the Red Army were predicted today by the Paris left-wing anti-Communist newspaper France-Tribune.

The newspaper said the delay in issuing an official communique on Zhukov's future was due to difficulties Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev was having with resistance in the armed forces against discarding Zhukov.

The Belgrade reports said Zhukov was accused of purging an "army line" contrary to the party line, of creating a "personality cult" around himself and of organizing a group of officers supporting his policies.

FACE DEMOTION

The reports there added that Zhukov has been stripped of his party posts already and faces demotion to a minor military post.

These reports coincide with the return to Belgrade from Moscow of Soviet ambassador Ivan Zamiatina who attended the central committee meetings of the Soviet Communist party after Zhukov's replacement as defence minister.

Zhukov lost his seat on the Communist party's highest policy-making group, the presidium, and his membership in the larger central committee as well, the reports claim.

CLOSE VOTE

BELGRADE (Reuters) — The removal of Marshal Georgi Zhukov from political leadership followed a close vote in the Soviet Communist party central committee, reliable sources said today.

Former Soviet defence minister Zhukov's dismissal from the presidium of the party as well as from the central committee will be announced soon in a party statement from Moscow, the sources said.

TURNED ON KRUSHCHEV

PARIS (AP) — The newspaper France Sol reports today that Soviet Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchev wanted to save defence minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov's job and only turned on him when Khrushchev himself was endangered.

The argument within the Soviet hierarchy, over supremacy of the Communist party or the Red Army has been going on for months. It was possible that Zhukov's tour, through Yugoslavia

OTTAWA (CP) — Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey's term as governor-general will be extended for another year, it was learned on high authority today.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker likely will make an announcement on this shortly.

It is also understood that Princess Margaret, due to visit British Columbia during the province's centennial next year, will stop at Ottawa and other Canadian cities. Mr. Massey will be her host.

The 70-year-old Mr. Massey, first Canadian-born governor-general, was appointed for a five-year term in February 1952. Former Prime Minister St. Laurent extended his term for one year until the "spring of 1958." His term now will be extended for another year—to the spring of 1959.

HARD WORKER

No governor-general has remained two full five-year terms in office, though some of them have received extensions, usually of one year and at least in one case, two years.

Mr. Massey has been recognized as a hard worker with an unsatiable desire to travel and visit every nook and cranny in Canada.

He has even flown over the North Pole, the only governor-general ever to do so.

ENTERTAINS THOUSANDS

He has entertained thousands of guests at his official Ottawa residence at Rideau Hall and at the Citadel in Quebec City, a summer residence.

In his long career, Canada's 18th governor-general has been an industrialist, diplomat, educationist and scrutinizor of cultural activities.

His slight, rather sombre exterior covers a love of humanity, a wit and tolerance bred from a long association with the arts.

There have been reports for some time that Princess Margaret may visit Canada next year. British Columbia has invited her to participate in the province's centennial and it is understood she has tentatively agreed.

Officials feel that if a schedule can be suitably arranged, she will also visit other Canadian cities perhaps on her way back to London from British Columbia. This would be her first official visit to this country.

Five Alpinists Killed In Fall

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany (AP) — Five mountain climbers, including three young girls, plunged 600 feet to their death in the Bavarian Alps near here Friday night.

Four bodies were recovered from the crevasse into which they had fallen while trying to scale the difficult south wall of the 6,201-foot Mount Unters.

Huge Canadian Wheat Shipment For India

OTTAWA (CP) — India has agreed to take $7,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat as part of her Canadian Colombo Plan contribution, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

The wheat, to be shipped shortly from eastern Canadian ports, is to help meet India's "pressing needs for food grains," Mr. Diefenbaker said in a statement.

It is understood that about 3,700,000 bushels of wheat are involved. This shipment, together with others to go to Pakistan and Ceylon under the Colombo Plan, will bring to a total of $10,000,000 the amount of Canadian wheat and flour to be contributed by Canada.

Usually, portions of this contribution to strengthen the economies of south and southeast Asia are spent by the recipient countries on Canadian goods, such as railway cars, electrical equipment and various other capital goods.

WITHOUT COST

Under the wheat agreements, India, for example, would obtain the wheat without cost and then sell it to local distributors for rupees, using the rupees for capital development.

The Canadian government earlier announced that Pakistan has agreed to take 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat this year, and that Ceylon would take $1,000,000 in flour.

LOCAL INTERPRETATION

The Downfall Of Marshal Zhukov

By N. VAN DER VLIET

(The fall of Marshal Zhukov has created much interest and sparked much speculation in the diplomatic circles of the world. The following article has been written for the Daily Courier as background information for our readers. Mr. van der Vliet is a local resident well fitted to discuss this subject. He served with the British Intelligence service during the war and was a member of the staff of the Allied Control Commission for Germany (British Element) in Berlin during 1945 and 1946. In the capacity of general staff officer, grade 1 (Lieut.-Col.) Russian Liaison Section, he was present at many meetings at which Marshal Zhukov was present and, therefore, had an excellent opportunity to study the then-rising Russian military figure.—Editor.)

It was during the grim days of December 1941 when Britain stood at bay with the risks of invasion still a reality, when the disaster of Pearl Harbor was headline news and the fate of two great battleships, HMS Prince of Wales and HMS Repulse, was sealed as they steamed into the Indian Ocean—it was then that the name of Marshal Zhukov (then General) first appeared in the terse communique of the Soviet high command.

LOST GROUND

His name was linked with the massive counterattack directed against von Kluge's panzer armies as their forward elements began to appear in the suburbs of Moscow. Assisted by an unusual spell of cold weather which halted many German tanks, even Russian troops thrown into battle, relieved the pressure and Moscow was saved.

In the months that followed more ground was lost and more heavy defeats were suffered by the Red Army until the tide turned at Stalingrad with which Zhukov's name was also linked.

CKWX Has Sommers' Interview

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eric Sanderson, news editor of radio station CKWX in Vancouver, said Friday night the station had taped an interview with Robert Sommers, former British Columbia lands and forests minister.

Mr. Sanderson said the interview was quite recent and would be broadcast on CKWX Sunday night at 8:30 P.M. He would not say where or how the interview was arranged.

The Vancouver Province says Mr. Sommers is presently in the United States. He has not been seen in the province since late in August.

Mr. Sommers' activities as lands and forest minister will be investigated this month by a royal commission under Chief Justice Gordon Sloan.

Mr. Sanderson said the interview took place before the announcement of the inquiry.

LIVING IN OREGON

The Vancouver Province claims Sommers has been living in Oregon and California for the last four months.

The newspaper says he vanished again Friday. His wife, previously the only one who knew where he was, said "I tried to telephone where he was a couple of days ago, but they said he has left."

She refused to say exactly where he had been.

The Province said long investigations showed he had spent most of July in San Mateo, just south of San Francisco. At the end of the month he stayed briefly in Reno, Nev., and then returned to California.

During August he moved north to Klamath Falls, Ore., and apparently stayed there while waiting to see his doctor at Castleboro and his lawyer in Victoria.

The newspaper says the former cabinet minister was definitely seen at Klamath Falls, apparently heading south.

EXPERT SAYS:

Russians Could Wage War From Satellites

OTTAWA (CP) — An expert on missiles and electronics says the Russians conceivably could put up fleets of orbiting satellites which could drop weapons anywhere the Soviets chose.

He also suggests that satellites might be used to render useless by electronic means any defence against the intercontinental ballistic missile.

The expert is Group Capt. C. B. Limbrick, recently retired from the RCAF. He was director of the RCAF's guided missiles and special weapons branch and also director of radio warfare.

He makes his comments in the most recent issue of the monthly Canadian trade journal, Aircraft.

Group Capt. Limbrick says the use of radiating electronic deand Albania a week ago was arranged to get him out of Moscow.

While he was gone, the central committee was called into session. There were several long sessions, the paper reports. Khrushchev was at first on the side of the marshal.

However, as the debate progressed, Khrushchev is reported to have switched over to side with the most violent critics of Zhukov.

Several hundred senior Soviet army officers attended an eight-hour meeting in Moscow's Kremlin Friday when the future of the dismissed defence minister was discussed.

Before the meeting the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said there had been attempts to reduce the role of the Communist party within the armed forces.

Sweeping changes in the command of the Red Army were predicted today by the Paris left-wing anti-Communist newspaper France-Tribune.

Canada's Social Security Totals $105,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government's proposals for higher social security payments will cost the federal treasury an estimated $105,000,000 a year.

That is the aggregate of estimates given Friday in the Commons by Health Minister Montford for $9-a-month increases in old age security pensions and in maximum payments for old age assistance, blindness and disability allowances.

The new payment level would be $55 a month, and would be effective as of yesterday with first payments at the end of this month.

Spokesmen for all opposition groups welcomed the proposed increases, but CCF and Social Credit members said the government was not generous enough in easing some restrictions and requirements.

Frank Christian (SC-Okanagan-Boundary) pleaded that old age pensioners be allowed to live outside Canada the year-round and still receive pensions. The government proposes to double to six months a year—the period in which pensioners can be outside the country without losing payments.

While the Commons made preliminary progress on the welfare legislation, there were other developments:

1. Prime Minister Diefenbaker turned down suggestions for Canadian diplomatic recognition of Red China until Peiping "explains its wrongdoings under international law."

2. Trade Minister Churchill said he does not expect that a United States, selling mission going to Japan will cut into Canadian wheat exports to the Far East country.

3. Party lines were crossed in debate on a private bill sponsored by Ray Thomas (SC-Wetaskiwin) proposing the listing of candidates' party affiliation on federal election ballots. The bill did not come to a vote.

Some 310,000 Canadians 70 years and over would receive the $9 pension increase, at a cost of $96,000,000 a year. Residence requirements to qualify would be cut to 10 years from 20.

The old age security fund is financed by special two per cent tax levies on personal and corporate income and on sales. Its customary deficits have been made up from the federal treasury and this year's double increase is expected to put the fund further into the red.

WIG-MAKERS SCARCE

Bald Heads May Get Colder Now

LONDON (AP) — Wig makers are getting scarce.

"We just can't get enough of them," says Robert Harris, manager of Charles Fox Limited wig makers. "Ours is a dying trade."

Knotters tie strands of Japanese, German and Italian hair to gauze, mounts stretched over dummy domes.

A copy of hundred years ago a man's station in life could at most be judged by his wigs and how well he kept them powdered.

MOSTLY ACTORS

"Today, most of our production goes to actors and actresses," Harris said. "We make a few wigs privately."

That covers gentlemen or ladies shy of hair.

The wigmaking trade is not easy. A seven-year apprenticeship is required.

Judges and lawyers in court wear wigs but these need not be of the same quality as stage or private headpieces.

Gov't Made Wise Choice In Naming Royal Commissioner

The people of British Columbia have greeted with satisfaction the announcement that the provincial government has appointed Chief Justice Gordon Sloan as a one-man fact finding royal commission to investigate the charges that the former minister of lands and forests, R. E. Sommers, accepted bribes in return for forest management licences.

The step was taken following the dismissal of the slander charges brought by Mr. Sommers against D. Sturdy, a Vancouver lawyer. Through the non-appearance in court of Mr. Sommers the case was dismissed without evidence being produced. Mr. Sommers was reported as being ill, with even his lawyers not knowing where he is.

The step now being taken by the government was only thing it could do. If Mr. Sommers is innocent, his name should be cleared, if he is guilty, the government is bound to take action against him.

But the matter goes further than that. The government itself is deeply concerned in this case. Had a similar situation developed in Britain, it probably would have resulted in the resignation of the government. While in this country we are a little more hard-boiled than that, the fact remains that this case and the manner in which it has been handled has lessened the prestige of the government itself. Human nature being what it is, a key figure, such as the minister of lands and forests, cannot be accused of corruption without some of the dust brushing off upon the government itself. It is for this reason that the correct facts of the situation must be ascertained and made public.

The pity of it is that the action taken by the government this week could have been—should have been—taken in December 1955 when the charges were first made. The situation has changed but little in the interim. Any change there has been has been to the detriment of Mr. Sommers and so, indirectly, of the government.

The excuse that "the matter was before the courts" was just that, an excuse not a reason. A slander case was before the courts but this would not, we understand, eliminate any criminal action based on the same situation.

It is interesting to speculate upon the reasons which promotes the government to name a royal commission now when it has resisted this move for nearly two years. Only this week the attorney-general was reported as saying he could see no need for an investigation and the RCMP report on the case made to him would never be published. Now, presumably, that report will be made public during the course of the investigation.

The government chose wisely in its selection of a commissioner. Chief Justice Gordon Sloan enjoys the confidence of the people of British Columbia and has had much successful experience as a commissioner and an investigator. His report, in the minds of the people of this province, will settle one way or another the too-long-drawn-out Sommers affair.

Canadian Bank Anniversary

Bankers throughout British Columbia and the rest of Canada will look back across 14 decades of history tomorrow to recall the beginning of the Canadian banking system, acknowledged everywhere as among the best in the world.

The date, November 3, marks the 140th anniversary of the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, Canada's oldest financial institution whose pioneering bankers of the eighties were so closely involved in the early development of Canada's western most province.

The "Montreal Bank", as the B of M was known in its earliest days, had a capital of $250,000 and was the creation of nine Montreal merchants who saw the need for banking facilities in the fledgling nation.

In 1817, the region that was to become British Columbia was merely a wilderness, prized for its furs, but populated only by Indians and white traders and hunters.

Back East, development was only a few stages further advanced. The Canadian colonies were primitive settlements and the entire population numbered only about 500,000.

With no native Canadian currency, trade was largely conducted by barter, although some foreign exchange circulated. As a result, trade as we know it today was practically non-existent.

One of the first decisions of the original nine Montreal merchants who established the B of M was to issue their own bills and coins, and this innovation did much to stabilize and accelerate trade.

Despite popular misgivings, the bank's directors had the vision to finance the original Canadian Pacific Railway venture. In 1887, the first train rumbled into Vancouver and within a few weeks of that day the B of M's first B.C. branches were opened in Vancouver and Victoria.

This early spirit of far-sighted pioneering in the development of B.C. became almost routine and new bank branches were opened wherever they were needed as the province opened up.

From this beginning grew the excellent banking service that this province enjoys. On the Canadian scene the institution of Canadian banking has been one commanding general admiration throughout the world. After a hundred and forty years it is acknowledged to be one of the most practical and soundest in the world. In the thirties when banks in other countries were forced to close their doors to such a degree that the governments had to declare a "bank holiday" Canadian banks continued to function normally. Canadians have good reason to be proud of their banking system.

Opportunity for Businessmen

In this highly competitive age of ours good management is essential, whether it is operating an orchard, producing plywood or organizing a fund raising campaign. Sound business practices result from training and experience. For executives to obtain up-to-date training at a university is not only very difficult for those of us in the valley, but can also be very costly.

During the past 4 years a business management course has been held in Vernon under the sponsorship of the boards of trade and with the co-operation of the faculty of commerce and business administration at the University of B.C. Professors—each highly trained in his particular field—have given up a day and a half of their busy week to travel into the interior to give their lectures. Over the four years some hundred young executives have graduated and have returned to their businesses to apply the principles of their training.

Because of the interest and enthusiasm that has been shown, the university has consented to continue the courses at Kelowna. This will enable students from the southern part of the valley to attend. This is one of the first times the professors have lectured to classes this far from the campus and universities across Canada are watching the experiment with interest.

There has never been a better opportunity for valley businessmen to receive training in business management. Little difficulty is expected in obtaining the full quota of students for the class.

The university, Dean E. D. MacPhee and his professors are to be congratulated on this worthwhile effort in extending the university into the interior of this province.

They Bring Discredit to City

The people of Kelowna certainly have nothing to be proud about in the actions of certain youths from this city who gave a disgraceful exhibition in Vernon on Halloween.

If the reports of the escapade were not exaggerated—and there is no reason to believe they were—these local punks, guests in a neighboring city, behaved in a most disgraceful manner. That some of them landed in police court was no surprise, the pity of it is, however, that the sentences were not much more severe than they were.

Actions such as this reflect no credit upon those concerned and must inevitably reflect derogatorily upon the unhappy city which is their home. The acts of this local group of rowdies in Vernon certainly does not follow the pattern of most of our youths.

It is unfortunate that a small group such as this can give a poor impression of a city but we trust that the people of Vernon will be understanding enough to appreciate that this city does not generally breed "punks". Nevertheless, the people of Kelowna must walk in the valley of humiliation as a result of the unpardonable actions of a few of its local citizens in Vernon on Halloween.

THE WEEK'S NEWS

Marshal Zhukov, Sputnik Liquor Still Headlines

By JOSEPH MacSWEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The world pondered the fate of the latest man to slide under the Moscow table.

The man was Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, the greatest of Red Army heroes. There seemed little hope that he would retrieve anything like a rank equivalent to his former post as defence minister.

Nikita Khrushchev, the vodka-drinking civilian who presides over Soviet affairs, took a gay view of the whole affair.

He visited the Turkish embassy in Moscow to proclaim—over a number of hearty toasts—that Zhukov could depend on getting a job according to his abilities. Khrushchev also made it clear that his visit to the Turkish embassy meant that things had become much less dangerous in the Middle East.

NATO MISTONE

Sputnik, the current glory of the Soviet, has resulted in plans for the most important meeting that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has ever organized. President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and Prime Minister Diefenbaker are among the government heads of the 15-nation organization who announced they will attend a Paris meeting of the alliance.

Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, secretary-general of NATO, was one of the key figures in arranging the meeting, which is expected to aim at an historic pooling of Western knowledge to combat Soviet gains.

BOMB THROWER

A fanatic heaved a grenade into the Israeli Parliament in Jerusalem. The Jewish bomb-thrower—who has been a mental patient and was nursing a grudge—killed Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, Welfare Minister Moshe Shapira, seriously, and Foreign Minister Golda Meir.

MONTREAL CHANGE

Mayor Jean Drapeau went down to defeat in the Montreal municipal election. He was beaten by Senator Sarto Fournier, who thus finds himself not only the mayor of Canada's largest city but also a member of the Canadian Senate.

LIQUOR VOTE

An Alberta plebiscite showed a firm vote in favor of a greater variety of liquor outlets in the province.

But this doesn't necessarily mean that the province is going to get, for instance, cocktail bars. The government made it clear before the vote that the result would only be an expression of opinion and not binding on anyone.

Voters in Calgary and Edmonton were heavily in favor of permitting mixed drinking in beer parlors, but already allowed in smaller Alberta municipalities.

STUDIES EXODUS

Newfoundland started a study to determine the "feasibility" of moving thousands of persons from isolated outposts to central communities.

Premier Smallwood announced that a "short-term organization" had been set up for the purpose and he added:

"It will be possible for the government to come to a conclusion as to the probable cost of moving people who might wish to move—perhaps as many as 50,000."

IRISH SWEEPS

Canadians won a total of about $1,400,000 through the luck of the Irish—the Irish Sweepstakes—that is.

Three persons held $140,000 tickets on the winning horse, the Irish-bred Stephanotis. They are: Mary Schiedel, 41, Kitchener; William Richardson, 22, Trenton; and Manny Allen, Calgary.

There also were five $58,000 second-prize winners and a total of nearly 2,000 money winners in all.

ASIAN SPUTNIK

Russia announced, in effect that it has something better than Sputnik—for people with Asian flu.

It is a "flu serum that you sniff like snuff."

Personally Speaking

By VENERABLE D. S. CATCHPOLE

THANK YOU SO MUCH!

Some years ago, on a railway which shall be nameless, I went into the dining car and sat down. The steward came along with an order sheet and a pencil, put them down in front of me and said, in a very oily tone, "Thank you!"

Now just why did he thank me? I had a horrid feeling that his uncouth tone had a good deal to do with an anticipated tip. In England this past summer we stayed in London at a sort of hotel in Hampstead where the waitresses were German girls who had come over to learn the language and work for a year or two while they went to school.

Both here, and at a cottage hotel outside Exeter, we found the same strange custom. When a waitress brought the soup, or the main course, or anything else she embarrassed me by saying, every time: "Thank you" or "Thank you so much." Now she was serving me. I was not serving her. There was nothing city about the way these girls spoke. It was not offensive, and yet I could not get used to it.

Not so in the United States! I have noticed again and again that when the waitress has brought my order and I have said "Thank you", which I consider the polite thing to do, she replies, "Um-hm." I suppose that this peculiar sound is equivalent to "That's O.K., brother." Perhaps she is flattered that I thank her at all. I wouldn't know. But when those German girls who, I am told, are of good family, thanked me for the privilege of serving me, not once but several times during the meal, I began to wonder if the words had any meaning at all. Why should she thank me "so much"? I may have been doing her a remote favor by providing her with work, but work is honest and honorable. I did so wish they would not say it on so heavily.

An yet there was something about the clerks in the shops that I liked very much. They were respectful but not oily. It was "Yes, sir" or "Certainly, madam" but I did not get the impression that they were debating themselves. In fact, at first, I felt quite in awe of the restaurant's wine waiter in tails and black tie. Had I not been in England for some time, I should have been completely floored by one such impressive chap in tails and white tie. I suppose all this is really part of the subtle plan of taking the guest for a financial ride. It is unliking to one's ego to be treated with respect, and I dare say these people who are so respectful have a good laugh at us. All of us have been in eating-places where food has been thrown at us without a word, where the impression is given that the service is a very great bore indeed. I doubt if we like eating there. I remember going to what used to be a famous shop in Vancouver during the war, when help was hard to get. The girl was chewing gum and simply couldn't be bothered even to tell us what kind of ice cream there was. I was there not long ago and it was a very different story. The service could not have been better.

I may have told you before of the occasion in Rossland when I went to the door and was confronted with a huge man who held out a box containing little packets of lavender and said, "Say, bud, do you want to buy some of these?" Well, perhaps, that is democracy but it so happens that I don't appreciate being called "Bud" by such a casual acquaintance. Maybe, it is because I do not come from the ruling classes, that I usually address people respectfully.

Courtesy is always pleasant. Because a man serves me is no reason why I should treat him like dirt, as I heard a Kelowna merchant treated not too long ago, but I think respect or whatever it is can be overdone. I still think of those nice German girls at the Hampstead hotel with pleasure but I did so wish that they would not thank me so persistently for giving me most excellent service.

OTTAWA REPORT

Sputnik Has Changed Ideas

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE DAILY COURIER

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has agreed with the United States' President Eisenhower that, as never before, the Free World must now co-operate to save freedom.

This urgency is of crisis proportions. Some people, some industries, will be hurt in this program of interdependence, which will first of all lead to rationalization of research and production covering Sputnik-age weapons. But these casualties will be mitigated, and individuals' setbacks must be tolerated in the drive to benefit us all.

"We must now consider, not the national survival of each economically, but the survival of all internationally," declared Mr. Diefenbaker, after last week's top-level diplomatic meeting.

"We are all in this together," he stressed. "In these days national self-sufficiency is out of date."

Thus Canada's eight-year old dream, long ridiculed by our two powerful know-all allies, Britain and the States, has now been seized upon by them both, just as a drowning man clutches a lifeboat.

THE CANADIAN CLAUSE

Canada, the baby among the great free nations at the time, was invited to join the North Atlantic Treaty in 1949. Canada looked at this proposal for a long-term military alliance, and foresaw the extravagance and the intolerable tax-burden which would follow industrial competition among military allies. So Canada proposed that the treaty should include the pledge that the allies would co-operate in non-military fields such as trade, as well as in building up defence forces. The Big Powers agreed, but secretly intended to humiliate the baby rather than to heed its glug-glug suggestions.

Our statesmen did not know of this British-American double-cross, and in all good faith our then Foreign Minister Lester Pearson predicted to a Canadian audience that this "Canadian clause" in the treaty might lead to an "economic commonwealth of the Western World," a sort of free trade area in the Atlantic community. "This proposal may seem far-fetched," he apologized, "but in this jet-propelled atom-age, nothing less will do."

At last Macmillan and Eisenhower are beginning to agree that nothing less will do.

Three years ago, a group of private citizens from nine countries in the NATO alliance signed the "Declaration of Atlantic Unity", urging their governments to meet their pledge under the Canadian clause. This declaration was presented to the Council of Ministers of NATO by a delegation headed by international newspaper-publisher Roy Thomson.

Last year NATO's "Three Wise Men"—given that title in ridicule by Britain's Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd—underlined the need for this economic co-operation. But the "wisest" of the three, our Mr. Lester Pearson, insisted that their report be phrased in moderate terms which would not offend the known hostility to the idea of our so-called allies, Britain and U.S.A.

It is interesting to note that a signatory of that declaration was the far-sighted M.P. who has now become our prime minister. And as one of his first international engagements, he will head our delegation to the important NATO council meeting in Paris in December.

What might happen at that fateful meeting, to be attended by the heads of nearly all the constituent governments?

When Prime Minister Macmillan expressed the urgent need for full, frank and unreserved unity in the Western World, I asked him if he considers the time is ripe for common citizenship among us—for the creation of a United States of Atlantic, in fact.

Such a question would have been ridiculed up to last month. But the launching of Sputnik has changed all that. As Mr. Diefenbaker has declared: "Khrushchev deserves the highest credit for launching his little moon. If it had not been launched, we would have continued in our old feeling of isolationism which has now been exploded."

So in these changed conditions, Mr. Macmillan replied to me: "Nothing is impossible, but we must work towards it slowly." We urged them to think when it was not so late.

Former Yukon MP, Mrs. George Black Dies At Age 91

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Mrs. George Black, who enjoyed a career which led from a wealthy United States home to the rugged gold camps of the Yukon, died at her home here Friday following a long illness. She was 91.

The first lady of the Yukon for many years, Mrs. Black, wife of the former House of Commons speaker, was the third woman to sit in the Canadian Parliament. She sat as an Independent Conservative member for the Yukon from 1935 to 1940, the only term between 1921 and 1949 that her husband, because of illness, didn't represent the constituency. She is survived by her husband and a son by her first marriage.

The first woman MP in Parliament was Agnes MacPhail, first elected in 1921 in Grey-Bruce as a Progressive. Catherine Wilson was appointed as Liberal representative to the Senate in 1930.

PM'S TRIBUTE
Prime Minister Diefenbaker said, "It is with profound sorrow that I learn of the death of Mrs. Black, one of the great ladies of the far northwest of our times."

"By her courage and daring in pioneer times, her faithfulness to the Parliament of Canada as a member of the House of Commons, and by her energy, wit and sincerity, she made a contribution to this country rarely equalled by any other woman."

Mrs. Black was quoted as saying, after spending more than 60 years in the Yukon, "I never yet met a man I didn't like and I never met a man who was down right bad."

Always looking for adventure, she landed in Dawson July 4, 1897, after the arduous trek from Skagway, Alaska, where she was one of 200 women among 2,000 men.

MP AT 70
Her career also took her overseas to work among Canadian troops in the First World War and only a few weeks before her 70th birthday, to the House of Commons to represent the country's most northerly constituency.

Born Martha Louise Munger in Kansas, she moved at an early age to Chicago with her parents. Her father, the late George Munger, was an inventor, manufacturer of laundry machinery and owner of a chain of laundries in the United States.

In 1887 she married Will Purdy, son of the late Warren J. Purdy, president of the Chicago-Rock Island and Pacific Railway. They had three children. In 1900, after the death of her first husband in Honolulu, Mrs. Black formed a claim-working partnership with two men at Gold Hill.

After her second marriage in 1904 at Dawson to George Black, then a rising young lawyer seven years her junior, she took part in Yukon politics and community work. From 1912 to 1916, while her husband was commissioner of the Yukon, she was chataleine of the Yukon. She was awarded the Order of the British Empire in 1946 for her cultural and social contributions to the Yukon. In 1940 she published a book on Yukon wild flowers, "My Seventy Years," which was published in 1938 and for the last year she had been working on a revised book called "My Ninety Years," but she did not complete it.

OSHL Has Few Problems—
That Crowds Wouldn't CureBy GEORGE INGLIS
(Courier Sports Editor)

The OSHL goes into its third week end with very few problems answered, but a whole lot of new ones posed for managements of the four valley clubs.

Up to date, the biggest element of unhappiness, on the managerial level, has been the response of the fans. No doubt adopting a "wait and see" attitude, the spectators have been staying away in bunches—causing bank balances to curl in horror as the expenses grind inexorably on.

Vernon's manager-coach George Agar is undoubtedly in the unhappiest frame of mind, since he has had two crowds that were well under the 700-mark, enough to whiten the hair of any senior "A" club official.

Kelowna's crowds, while they haven't been up to par considering the calibre of this year's hockey club, have managed to keep the slavering wolf on the doorstep, even if they haven't driven him away.

Penticton is having problems, with neither good attendance nor a good hockey club to cheer them up, but they are taking steps to improve both as soon as possible.

The happiest guy in the circuit, though you would never guess it to look at his dour countenance, is Ken McKenzie, following Saturday night crowds of 2,200 and 2,450. Whether it was a result of the unusual attendance exciting the arena staff, or not, the ice on those two occasions was rather more water than ice, giving a hard-skating club a rugged time.

The picture, on the whole, could stand some improvement, if the clubs are going to go through this year in good shape. Locally, the hockey club executive feel confident that the situation will right itself.

Attendance at the three local games so far, while not up to the 1650 average necessary for successful operation, has been reasonably close to that figure, and will improve in all probability. "I think that the people will start coming out in better numbers once they realize what a fighting hockey club they have this year," said Bob McKinstry, the Packers president, when asked how he felt about it.

We hope so, too.

MORE PROBLEMS

On the player front, Vernon's coach George Agar seems to be low man on the totem pole again. To date, George's boys have only won two hockey games, and neither of them could be said to boast about, especially when the winners were defending champs.

He beat the Vees when they were under strength in the first game of the season, and he beat the Packers when they were ditto in last Tuesday's game. In the interim he has been beaten by every club in the league, twice by the Packers. This, added to his sickly gates, has spelled trouble for the fiery playing-manager-coach.

The frustrating part of it, however, is that he has a good hockey club, but just can't seem to jell. Taken individually, the blue-shirted squad have to doff their bonnets to none in the league. Acting as a team, they have had their hats off most of the time so far. Their trouble seems to be just that—they aren't acting as a team.

Kamloops doesn't seem to have too many problems right now, judging by the score sheet, but their problems will start as the others decrease. They have been soundly beaten once by Kelowna, but came back to beat them once. They have a 2-1 win record against Penticton, and handled Vernon easily in their home-ice victory over the champs.

The Chiefs main problem is that they have been going with most of their strength so far, with nothing to extend to. The other clubs have been going along short-handed to a certain extent, and are doubtless going to improve. The Chiefs may start having their problems then.

The Vees are trying to do a mid-season building job, and add some savvy to the hustle they already have, in an endeavor to get back into the winning ways the Peach City crowd love. It's a little tougher to do now than it would have been last spring, however, and will probably present more problems.

Kelowna has fewest player problems, since they have all spots covered, and have managed to hold down the top spot with a club that has been severely riddled by flu. They have just two spots they are in doubt about, and hope to have answers for them.

As team captain Jim Middleton said, "Holy smoke, if we ever get a full team out there, we'll be tough to beat."

On the player front, there is no reason for panic.

WHAT THEN?

Some loose ends need tying up, and this year will be the best the league has experienced, without a doubt.

The officiating should be brought up to scratch, for one thing. There is no need for panic here, or demanding new officials as some of the more voluble and lesser versed are blabbing now. The answer is to get more out of those we have.

Establish clearly what type of refereeing we want in the league, whether tough or tame, then have the rules interpreted by the referee-in-chief for the benefit of the officials. Leave them no doubt as to where they stand on doubtful issues that can and do arise. Then take action if these edicts are not carried out.

Dress up the games as much as possible. Vernon has probably made greater strides in this direction than any other club (although the attendance doesn't indicate their success), but all clubs should jump into this with both feet.

Remember, senior hockey is entertainment. When you step into the entertainment business in the valley you have radio, theatre, dances and TV to contend with. Fortunately, there is no burlesque problem.

Remember, in competing with any of these media, it is necessary to provide the guy with the buck with more than the next medium has to offer. Don't think for one moment that a good hockey club alone is the answer.

Jolly him along, play stirring band music, pull capers between periods, shoot the odd celebrity at him if possible. Make him feel you are happy to have him there at the arena.

Remember, it's entertainment—you have to sell it.

Kamloops Rides
To 5-1 Victory

VERNON (CP) — Paced by the scoring power line of Bill Warwick, Dick Warwick and Mark Marquess, Kamloops Chiefs swept to a 5-0 second period lead after a scoreless first frame and shellacked Vernon Canadians 5-1 in the opening game of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League game here last night.

A goal after 9:22 of the last session by Merv Bidoski deprived Chiefs goalie Jim Shirley of a shutout. It was the second time in succession that Shirley had lost a shutout in the last frame.

Playing hard hockey in the first session, neither team was able to grab the initiative. Both goalies did sterling work to keep the tally blank.

In the second frame the Warwick brothers linked up with Marquess to keep Hal Gordon on the hop.

The lead came after 2:08, Bill Hryciuk scoring on a pass from Jack Millard.

Dick Warwick side-stepped Gordon to crash home number two. Bill Warwick hit the net after Mark Marquess had left him in the clear. Ron Leopold notched another with assists from Gerry Prince and Alf Cadman.

Prince scored the fifth Kamloops goal with Cadman and Ker-naghan assisting.

In the final period Merv Bidoski scored the Canadians' first goal, assisted by George Agar and Walt Trentini.

First Period — Penalties: King 0:21, Evans 5:32, Henschburger 6:54, King 8:35.

Second Period — 1. Kamloops, Hryciuk (Millard) 2:08; 2. Kamloops, D. Warwick (Daves) 4:22; 3. Kamloops, B. Warwick (Marquess) 4:53; 4. Kamloops, Leopold (Prince) 9:04; 5. Kamloops, Prince (Kernaghan) 15:01. Penalties: Durston 2:18, Gabor 8:06, Agar 19:13.

Black Hawks
Can't Muster
Power Play

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
If Chicago Black Hawks can muster a potent power play from their roster the rest of the National Hockey League will have a problem.

So far this season Hawks have been able to score only one goal while the opposition had men in the penalty box. The lack of scoring punch on the power play is the main reason Hawks have only 14 goals in nine starts.

But they've utilized their goals to full advantage, winning four games and tying another for nine points and sole possession of third place.

Hawks meet last-place Toronto Maple Leafs tonight at Toronto. At the same time Detroit Red Wings, who are tied with Boston Bruins for fourth place with eight points, tangle with the leading Canadiens at Montreal.

GAME TODAY

In the other game today, Bruins visit the second-place Rangers at New York in the first of 21 games to be televised each Saturday.

A 24-year-old netminder, Marcel Paille, will be making his NHL debut before the television cameras. Paille, goaltender for Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, has been called up by Rangers to replace Lorne Gump Worsley, benched with a pulled left thigh muscle.

Sunday's action has Detroit visiting Boston and Rangers at Chicago.

Bluenose, five times winner of the trophy, was wrecked off a Haiti reef in 1946, and then Thebaud was wrecked off Venezuela in 1948.

PENTICTON (CP) — Scoring other end, Dave Gatherum was no goals in the first two minutes (tested only 24 times).

The V's got their first goal at 15:14 of the second period, Touzin beating Gatherum from point-blank range after taking a pass in the clear from Bernie Bathgate.

SECOND GOAL
Young got his second goal at 8:22 of the third frame, slapping in a perfect goalmouth pass from Wood was pulled in favor of a sixth attacker with two minutes remaining, but the strategy backfired when Roche hit the empty net from centre ice at 19:45.

Vees had their best scoring chances in the second period but Gatherum rose to the occasion, turning aside three dangerous scoring thrusts within seconds.

First period—1. Kelowna, Powell (Young, Durban) 0:21; 2. Kelowna, Young (McCallum) 1:18; 3. Kelowna, Durban (Powell) 7:28. Penalties: Dyckstra 8:48; Middleton and Touzin 14:01.

Second period—4. Penticton, Touzin (Bathgate) 15:14. Penalties: Gatherum and Conway 13:30; Bathgate 17:06; Pyett 18:49.

Third / period—5. Kelowna, Young (Powell, Durban) 8:22; 6. Penticton, Harper (Bathgate, Touzin) 8:40; 7. Kelowna, Roche (Coburn) 19:45. Penalties: Uden-dale 6:42; Pyett 12:24; Pyett 18:49.

Canadians
Face Rough
Weekend

By The Canadian Press
Vancouver Canucks, still undefeated in Western Hockey League play after Friday's game with Seattle, have a tough job ahead if they are to finish the weekend with their no-loss record intact.

The Canucks blanked the Americans 2-0 Friday before more than 5,000 in Vancouver for their seventh straight win. They play Victoria Cougars today and Seattle Sunday making three games in three days. This is a rough schedule for even Art Chapman's wonders.

Friday's win puts Vancouver three points ahead of second place New Westminster Royals in the coast division of the WHL.

In the night's other game, the Royals suffered their second loss on the prairie when Edmonton Flyers beat them 3-1.

The Flyers' victory lifted them past the idle Winnipeg Warriors into first place in the prairie section, by one point.

Marcel Pelleret collected his second shutout of the season in Vancouver and only had 12 shots to stop. Elliott Chorley and Bob Robinson scored for the winners.

In Edmonton Gerry Leonard, Chuck Holmes and Len Lundie gave the Flyers their winning margin. The New Westminster goal, scored by centre Max McNab, gave him the WHL scoring lead.

The former Detroit Red Wing and veteran Royal centre has collected six goals and 11 assists for a one-point lead over Calgary's Fred Hucul.

Tonight's action will have Winnipeg going after top spot, meeting the last-place Saskatoon - St. Paul Regals in St. Paul. New Westminster meets the Stampeders in Calgary.

FRIDAY'S FIGHTS

Lunenburg's famed fishing schooner Bluenose defeated the Gertrude Thebaud of Gloucester, Mass., in the fifth and deciding race for the international fishermen's trophy 19 years ago in heavy seas off Boston? Bluenose, five times winner of the trophy, was wrecked off a Haiti reef in 1946, and then Thebaud was wrecked off Venezuela in 1948.

RENEW DISCUSSIONS

Aroused Pacific Coast Baseball
Officials Threaten Court Action

AROUSING PACIFIC

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —

Negotiators for the Pacific Coast Baseball League and the National League Giants and Dodgers scheduled new talks today after a late session Friday night.

The meeting broke up with PCL president Leslie O'Connor reporting disgruntled.

"We are far from an offer but I would feel humiliated to discuss it."

"They" are San Francisco Giants' president Horace Stoneham and Los Angeles Dodgers' vice-president E. J. Buzzr Bussard who were dickering with O'Connor and six PCL club officials over indemnities.

The six-member PCL negotiating committee was picked after a day-long session of the full PCL directorate to work out the thorny problems of a new coast league makeup and the question of damages to be demanded from the National League for invading San Francisco and Los Angeles.

CAN GO TO COURT
O'Connor said after the night meeting that there was no discussion of court action but he would hold that power in reserve if a settlement isn't reached.

The PCL directors empowered O'Connor to go into court if necessary to seek indemnities for disrupting the league.

O'Connor told reporters the PCL has no intention of trying to prevent the Giants and Dodgers from playing in California next season.

"The whole effort now is to get just payment," he said.

He and Fred David, president of the Sacramento club, said neither Stoneham nor Bussard had made any money offer.

O'Connor said whether the PCL can operate next year depends on finding new cities for the San Francisco, Los Angeles and Hollywood franchises.

Revival In Church Attendance Is Noted By Anglican Minister

By EDITH WEDDELL
After reaching an all time low in the past few years, church attendance and interest is definitely improving. Archdeacon D. S. Catchpole found after spending a ten-week holiday in England.

In reply to questions to various persons, none had complaints of sparse congregations, and attendance is very much the same in this country, that is, quite normal.

At John Keble Memorial church at Edgware, a new modern style church, and St. Alban's, Golders Green, in both of which he preached, the services were moderately well attended. Young people take the same part and are as interested as they are here.

At John Keble Church, a break-out service was held after the 9:30 a.m. service and a large number of young people as well as older people were happy and interested participants.

TOURIST INTEREST
Tourist interest in churches is very great, a considerable number is to be seen in every church visited—and of course there is a collection box in which they can—and do—put donations.

Archdeacon Catchpole was particularly delighted with the low level evidenced in the spotless cleanliness of churches, and the beautiful and well kept gardens surrounding them.

In Lavenham, a tiny village, consisting of only a handful of

SUNDAY LESSON

The Spirit Of Christian Worship

Scripture—I Corinthians 11.
By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
In this lesson, which may not be too easy for the younger children, and possibly the older ones, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that it be introduced by being reminded "that no great leader of worldwide influence ever asked or was expected, to be remembered regularly by some specific celebration, the rules for which he laid down." But the Christian church, every Lord's day, around the world, celebrates with millions partaking, what is called the Lord's Supper, in commemoration of Christ's holy death. It is the Lord's Supper which forms the principle subject of our lesson today.

In the first part of the chapter assigned to the lesson, Paul takes up the matter of women's place in the church, a subject that we will treat briefly.

Paul emphasizes that man is the head and the place of the woman is submission to him. But "they are both equal in the sight of God, but the man does have authority over the woman."

The women of our time are likely to dispute Paul's assertion.

Most modern women in America, is broken for you; and this do in England and Europe claim an equal partnership with their husbands, in all matters pertaining to home affairs, church participation, politics, etc.

However, when a man and woman attend church, the man always uncovers his head, while the woman remains covered. Paul says, "If a woman have long hair, it is a glory," but she should cover her hair if she prays to God or prophesies.

Paul is scandalized to learn that the congregations of the Corinthian church are broken up into divisions and factions, disagreeing with one another, and "When ye come together (it is) not for the better, but for the worse." He rebukes them sternly for this state of things.

He has also heard that their so-called partaking of the Lord's Supper is far from the example Christ set. Instead of the sacred nature of the sacrament being emphasized, it was made into a feast, where members of a certain "set" brought their food and shared it with one another, and the poor had no food and no part.

Paul reminds them of the evening of Christ's last day on earth, when, in the upper room, He and His disciples gathered, and He knew Judas would betray Him. The occasion was to be a feast, and Jesus gave thanks for the bread, "He brake it, and said, Take it; this is My body, which

Local Pastor Returns Home After Parley

LOCAL PASTOR
Rev. Cameron Stevenson, of Evangel Tabernacle has returned to Kelowna after attending the three evening and two day World Missions convention of Pentecostal Assemblies in Canada, at Vancouver.

"Let the Light Shine" was the theme of the convention, and the evening speaker was Rev. Willard T. Cantelon, Canadian-born evangelist who has spent six years in tent evangelism in post-war Germany, as well as in India and other parts of Asia, and in Kenya, East Africa, during the height of the Mau Mau violence.

During the convention sessions, the denomination's 1958 educational, home and foreign missions and literature departments programs were unveiled.

Pointing to the challenge of new suburban areas, the new towns and cities in Canada's expanding northward, officials told delegates that the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada plan to establish another 100 churches in 1958. The fast-growing missionary-minded denomination now numbers approximately 680 affiliated and associated churches in Canada.

Currently the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada is said to rank sixth in six of Canadian denominations. The 1951 federal Canadian census gave 95,000 as being Pentecostal, and it is believed that the present number under the pastoral care of Pentecostal churches exceeds 130,000. By actual count last Easter Sunday 50,545 were in PAOC Sunday schools.

In addition to the strong home missions work in the seven district conferences across Canada, the denomination maintains work amongst Canadian Indians in different parts of the country; the Eskimos in Canada's northward, a missionary plane "The Wings of the Gospel", that serves isolated areas from Port Harrison, Que. on James Bay, to Port Churchill on Hudson's Bay; missionary nursing station at Hay River, N.W.T. and gospel boats serving isolated communities on the B.C. coast.

The denomination has a large foreign missions program with 120 missionaries in 12 overseas fields, with five overseas theological schools for the training of national ministers to serve their own people. Last year reported world missionary giving totaled $605,551.

Average weekly earnings in major non-agricultural industries was $69.38, an increase of 5.6 per cent over a year ago. The consumer price index rose 3.6 per cent in this period.

No Butter Surplus Declares Harkness

OTTAWA (CP)—There is no butter surplus in Canada, Agriculture Minister Harkness said yesterday.

"That is the reason he gave in the Commons for discontinuing sale of government-held butter stocks at a 21-cent rebate to approved hospital and religious institutions.

Mr. Harkness said, since there no longer is a butter surplus he sees no reason why the government should subsidize those institutions.

During the First World War, he served in a crack cavalry regiment and obtained a commission. Later he joined the revolutionary forces and having distinguished himself in the battles of the civil war, was selected to attend the Frunze military academy in Moscow. There is no doubt he became a trusted party member and in his talks with President Eisenhower (General) in Germany he mentioned that the communist tactics were his faith.

He may have had reason since to ponder over this statement, but this was said during the zenith of his military career when, as the most highly decorated Soviet marshal, he was in fact a hero of the Soviet Union.

TANK WARFARE

During the period of Russian-German co-operation in the twenties he was sent to Germany to study tank warfare, the new art developed by the renaissance Reichswehr. In later years the Germans reeling under the blows of massed Russian tanks must have rued the day this pupil came to learn from them.

His great chance came in early 1939 when during the short undeclared war between the Soviet Union and Japan he decisively defeated the Japanese. Having proved himself as a planner as well as a tactician, he moved up rapidly in rank.

When the war ended he became commander-in-chief of the Soviet forces occupying Germany and chief spokesman for the Soviet in the Allied Control Council. But he did not stay there very long. The suspicious nature of Stalin could not brook the rising popularity of the marshal and in the spring of 1946 he was replaced by Marshal Sokolovsky. There followed years of oblivion, first as military governor of Odessa, then in the U.S.S.R.

He was seldom seen among the dignitaries attending the great Moscow parades on days of celebration. It must have irked him to look at photographs of Marshal Bulganin astride a charger reviewing the Moscow garrison, a marshal who had never led troops in battle.

POWERFUL FIGURE

But then Stalin died and Zhukov came back and was made deputy minister of defence. In the two crises which shook the Kremlin within the last few years he sided with Krushchev. First in the liquidation of the dreaded chief of police, Beria, and recently in the ousting of Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich.

He became minister of defence and was by far the most powerful figure beside the wily party boss. But he became too big for Krushchev who also must have had a rankling feeling that he was in debt to the marshal for his timely support on two known occasions for which, doubtless a price must have been exacted.

It is possible that Zhukov demanded less political supervision within his own precinct—the Red Army. He was after all a full-fledged member of the Central Committee and capable of ensuring this political control himself.

The excuse to get rid of him may have been his age, but in recent weeks, flushed by the success of the Soviet technological achievements Krushchev may have embarked upon the dangerous game of inciting Syria and issuing thinly veiled threats against Turkey. In this he may have been opposed by Zhukov whose duty it is to interpret the reactions of the West is based on a better understanding of Western thinking; also he would have a realistic approach to the prospects of a nuclear war.

As chief of defence he would be well aware of the immense power of destruction concentrated in his hands and as a cautious and shrewd commander he would not discount the arsenal of his potential adversaries or the threat to his lines of communication existing among the unwilling satellite countries should war break out. Ruthless, as evidenced by the crushing of the Hungarian revolt, nevertheless he would be prone to gambling.

OPPORTUNE TIME

Whatever the reasons for their disagreement, it is clear that Krushchev decided to act and the opportune time came when Zhukov was visiting Tito. In the rarified atmosphere of the Presidium of the Central Committee words such as loyalty and gratitude have no meaning. It is dog eat dog, and in this jockeying for position Krushchev has done rather well.

In spite of being the author of the destruction of the Stalin myth, he has followed his former master rather closely. The purges thus far have been less messy, not quite so wide in scope, but no less effective in clearing the way at the top.

The reaction of the Western world to this latest crisis in the Soviet Union has been interesting.

Fascinated by the developments the West is eagerly awaiting the outcome. Fascinated like a group of visitors to a zoo watching the battle of two sea monsters, and yet there is a difference.

Our interest is not purely academic as the outcome of this struggle may have a profound effect upon the future foreign policy of the Soviet Union. That is why it is important that we should try and assess with the limited means at our disposal what actually is happening and why.

When the brief announcement of Zhukov's removal from the post of minister of defence was made a few days ago, the speculations of Western observers, based on "reliable sources," in most cases predicted his impending promotion to a higher post, possibly that of premier or deputy premier. Few interpreted the announcement as the beginning of his end. The tight Moscow censorship clamped down on some of the despatches sent by Western correspondents, but when these were later released they revealed only more speculations. Little wonder since they have no access to the inner chambers of the Kremlin.

FUTURE POLICY

By now, the press has veered to the theory that in fact Zhukov is well on his way out. Whatever his next post may be, it is my belief that his power has been broken. Whether for ever remains to be seen, as the final act has not yet been played. But we can concur with the present and we have sufficient evidence to support this viewpoint.

At a reception at the Turkish embassy on the 29th of October, Krushchev made a statement which speaks for itself. He said he had seen Zhukov that day, and that he was in good health and that he would be given a post in accordance with his qualifications, the nature of the post having not yet been decided.

Is that how one refers to someone about to be promoted or even "kicked upstairs"? Not very likely. In the first place, why, if he was in good health, was he not attending the party? According to protocol, under normal circumstances he would have been there in person.

The Gulf which separates us from understanding the mentality of the rulers of the Kremlin is so wide that we fall even to catch the straws in the wind and this may prove dangerous to us some day.

Surely, it must have been clear even to the casual observer, to say nothing of the so-called experts, that the brief announcement of Zhukov's return from Yugoslavia and the almost simultaneous notice of his removal from the post of minister of defence were portents of his impending downfall. Even in Soviet Russia the normal procedure is to announce the new appointment before relinquishing the old.

But straws in the wind can be misleading and are not sufficient foundation upon which to make deductions. Yet we did have the background to help us assess this situation: We had the evidence of Krushchev's play for power as it unfolded in recent years and months. We, also, in the more distant past read Shakespeare. We should have been smart enough to read the signs correctly.

U.S. Tour Helped To Strengthen Ties, Says Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—The speech from the throne, read at the closing of the present session of Parliament, said today the Queen found it a great joy "to see again, my people in Canada."

The speech also said the Queen's visit to the United States strengthened her conviction "that the ties which bind our peoples are strong and enduring."

The reference to the Queen's visit to North America last month came at the start of the speech which outlined what the government had done in the last year.

Safety Campaign Pays Dividends

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Safety Council reported safer driving and walking habits have saved 800 lives in the United States during the first nine months of 1957. A year ago the death toll at the end of nine months was 28,910. This year it is 28,110, equivalent to 800 lives and a drop of three per cent.

The Spirit of Christian Worship ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Corinthians 11.

Paul writes to the Corinthians of his rules of conduct for men and women when they attend church. The woman's head should be covered, he tells them; the man's uncovered. Paul has heard, he writes, that when the congregation meets there are contentions among them and heresies, and that they meet "not for the better, but for the worse." Paul chides the Corinthians for their quarrels, and also for treating the Lord's Supper as a feast, and not a sacred ritual in remembrance of Christ who died for them.

"Let hungry men eat at home," and let each one examine himself and see if he is worthy to partake of this sacrament.

UNUSUAL PHOTO OF BRIDGE

Sights like this can be observed even on our busiest streets in Kelowna. This photo was taken at night on busy Pendozi Street. The exposure was 60 seconds at f.8. Twelve cars passed by during the exposure, making a white trail across the bridge. The lack of sunlight should not discourage photographers, because wherever there is light, no matter how great or little, a photo can be taken.

Vernon Will Be Host For Wildlife Lectures

Vernon will be host to some of the continent's most famous wildlife photographers during the coming months, when a series of three Audubon Screen Tours will be shown. The first program scheduled for November 7 will feature Laurel Reynolds of Piedmont, California, with the outstanding film "Western Discovery." All of these film-lectures will be presented in the Vernon Senior High School Auditorium at 8 p.m. This is the second year that the North Okanagan Naturalists' Club has sponsored the Audubon Screen Tours. Although they are shown regularly in more than 200 cities across the continent, the Okanagan is the only district in the interior of B.C. where residents will have the opportunity of seeing exceptional colour movies of wildlife presented in person by men and women whose talents as naturalists and lecturers are recognized the world over. The other lecturers to appear in this season's series are Bert Harwell of Berkeley, California with "Forgotten Country" on February 7, and Sewall Pettigall of Wayne, Maine who, while on an expedition for Walt Disney, has produced the film "Penguin Summer"—a pictorial account of life on the Falkland Islands, which will be shown March 24.

The Kelowna High School boy's football team has won the Central Okanagan title in League play and now is advancing to the North-Central semi-final for the Soguel Cup. The team played Vernon High school today at City Park Oval, but as this was written, it was not known what the final score turned out to be. It has been asked that all Houses—A, B, C, D, E, and F—choose members for a basketball team each before Monday, as intra-mural basketball will be starting then.

The United Nations Club held its fourth meeting of the year on Tuesday at its new noon time. The convention began Friday night with a banquet and a dance, and will continue all day Saturday with workshops on such topics as finance.

On October 31, the night that goblins and witches went forth on their grisly errands, Kelowna's teenagers had some good chances of having fun without causing damage. The Kinsmen gave a Halloween Ball, at the Arena, with Dave Sanda, emcee. There was a rock and roll dance. Free refreshments, spot dance prizes, and many other fun-packed events.

The ISCF, which is the junior-senior high school Christian fellowship, also gave a Halloween party at KHS. As usual at Halloween, parties, everyone had a great time.

LETTER To The EDITOR

HIGHWAY SOCIALISM
1788 Vernon Rd.
Oct. 30, 1957.

Editor,
Daily Courier.

Dear Sir:
The new alliance between Alberta, B.C. and Saskatchewan in the matter of developing "public camp grounds" along the long-awaited Trans-Canada Highway is a disturbing example of a meeting of minds in what many consider to be separate political ideologies.

These three, misfits in the federal picture, have been appointed as a committee to prepare plans for a network of hostels clear across the continent, along a highway that isn't yet completed. The reason for such haste is stated as being necessary in order that the best sites may be secured before "commercial interests" pick them up. On the surface of this, may seem an innocent enough public service, and has been approved as such by editorial comment in (of all places) the Southern Press.

In B.C., those in the tourist industry have watched an experiment in government participation in their business. The Social Credit government here has spent well over a million dollars in direct competition with them under the guise of forest management. The simple, crooked camp-sites, started by a former capitalist government in an effort to prevent camper-set forest fires, have mushroomed into enormous and beautiful lakeshore and seaside developments which rival our best resorts in location and facilities. And they are only beginning.

Nearly everyone is familiar with one or two resorts, auto courts or motels. All should know that it is ridiculous to characterize the owner-operators of such establishments as "commercial interests." They can be likened to Britain's shopkeepers or any other such group of individuals. Small capital at work, in a democracy. These people have been silent during the early stages of the experiment in public ownership of a part of their business for two reasons.

They simply could not believe that a free enterprise government would allow their hostels to develop to the point where they were in direct competition with the operations of voters and taxpayers. Secondly, they have been intimidated by the knowledge that the same government office that directs these affairs, already has the power to grade privately-owned establishments as first, second, third, fourth or fifth class. Whatever classification is awarded must then be conspicuously posted for the edification of their clientele.

It may be that this new ambi-

CAMERA QUERIES

By IRVING GORBY

Last week there was a slight mixup in photographs appearing in the column. The two photos illustrating the use of a frame for pictures, were transposed.

You've heard of beginner's luck. Yet now and then, you find your self fronting at a picture that should have been very good — and wondering just what went wrong.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, an experienced photographer could have pointed out your difficulty at a glance. He may have pointed out background, bad lighting, bad composition, or one of several other small errors that are so frequently and so unheedingly made.

Your experienced shutterbox friend avoids such errors through a simple step-by-step technique. Perhaps we could follow him through some of these so-called "simple" steps, and find out just what he wouldn't do if he were faced with some of the same situations that the every day snapshotter is faced with.

AVOID UNDEREXPOSURE
First of all UNDEREXPOSURE would be avoided. This is a snapshot of subjects in deep shade under a tree. Poor details are the results netted because there is not enough light for most simple box cameras. Remember—if you have a simple box camera, you have got to take your pictures in bright sunlight. The only exception to this rule is, if you want to take your pictures in the shade or on a dull cloudy day—use your flashgun. Sure it's going to cost a little more money, but what does that matter if you get pictures that satisfy yourself and your friends. Most people spend more money on taking flat, washed-out, underexposed snaps than it would take to use a flash bulb for every snap on the roll. Don't be afraid to use a flash out of doors—it won't do any harm, and if anything it will help to light hard facial shadows, very often present in out of door pictures.

While we are on the subject of using flash in the shade and bad face shadows, we might as well discuss the right and wrong way to place subjects in bright sunlight. Facing squarely into the sun usually means squinting, hard shadows, hollow eye-sockets. Noon isn't the best time for outdoor pictures; forenoon and afternoon are better, with the sun a little to one side so it doesn't glare into the subject's eyes. Even if you do use a flash, to eliminate hard face shadows, it is not a good policy to stand your subjects facing the bright sunlight, for the reasons stated above.

Perhaps you won't agree with all the comments that I'll be making as time goes along.

Perhaps you can think of ways in which some of the pictures I feature can still be made better. If so, that's all to the good. It means you're developing your critical judgment for subject matter, lighting, arrangement, and viewpoint. Don't stop at merely criticizing your pictures, but get out with a camera full of film and test your views in practice. After all, isn't the proof of the pudding in the eating? The truth of the matter is that not every little detail will agree of every little detail of a fine picture. The main thing is to satisfy yourself, and then I am sure the majority of people will like it too.

Opening lead—king of hearts. South adopted the best tactics in going directly to the slam with out further investigation. With 19 high card points plus a guaranteed trump fit opposite a jump response that represented 13 to 15 points, a slam contract seemed clearly indicated.

Declarer won the ace of hearts, drew two rounds of trumps, and cashed four diamonds, discarding the jack of hearts. The eight of hearts was ruffed and dummy was entered with a trump.

The situation was ripe for an endplay when a low club was led from dummy. Declarer intended of finesse the eight which would put West on lead and in a hopeless position. However, East upset the apparent when he played his nine on the low club lead and South ended going down one. The effort was good but not good enough. There was a much better play available which South missed. West had marked himself by the opening lead with the queen of hearts. Declarer failed to take advantage of this knowledge.

South's plays were all correct up to the point where he discarded the jack of hearts on the fourth round of diamonds. He should have discarded the eight of clubs instead. This would have created a foolproof endplay position.

A heart is now led from dummy and the jack is lost to West's queen. West has no escape. He must either lead a club up to declarer's A-Q, or play a heart which is ruffed in dummy as South disposes of his queen of clubs.

In choosing which loser to discard on the fourth diamond, South cannot properly decide until he has visualized what the end position will be after he has made his choice.

The heart discard was bound to lead to an imperfect endplay situation, the result of which could not be guaranteed.

The club discard, retaining the jack of hearts as the throw-in card, left nothing to chance. It was sure to succeed regardless of the location of the king of clubs.

American Cities Almost Paralyzed By Power Failure

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A power failure yesterday plunged Minneapolis, St. Paul and a section of southern Minnesota into virtual paralysis. Traffic semaphores stopped working, communications were disrupted, radio and television stations went off the air, newspaper publication was delayed and hospitals were forced to depend on emergency power units. Some parts of the region, embracing a population of more than 1,000,000, were out of power for nearly two hours. The failure was the most extensive in the Twin Cities in at least 25 years. TEN COMMANDMENTS COMING TO PARAMOUNT

Cecil B. DeMille's Production "The Ten Commandments," acclaimed by the nation's press, advance audiences and ministers of all faiths as an overwhelming motion picture experience and the all-time pinnacle of movie-making, will begin a one week engagement November 4 at the Empress Theatre.

Ten years in the planning, three years in the writing and more than a year in the actual shooting, the masterwork of the screen's master showman is by far the biggest production in film history.

Utilizing the talents of a massive cast of top stars and the best technicians the industry has to offer, the Paramount picture backgrounds an eternally dramatic and meaningful story with spectacle that has been called colossal in its scope.

The dramatization of the Book of Exodus stars Charlton Heston as Moses, Yul Brynner as his implacable enemy, Ramses II, Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson, Yvonne De Carlo, Debra Paget and John Derek.

Starring also are Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nina Koch, Martha Scott, Judith Anderson and Vincent Price, with even the "supporting" roles played by a long list of stars. Extras number upwards of 25,000 and were hired for the Egyptian location shooting by the tribe.

Running three hours and thirty-nine minutes, the VistaVision Technicolor film is the account of the life of Moses from the time his mother set him afloat on the Nile, through his years as a mighty general in the Pharaoh's army, to his betrayal and exile to the desert, and finally his deliverance of the Israelites and his receipt of God's Commandments.

Many scenes were made on Mount Sinai itself, on the shores of the Red Sea and on the very desert sands that felt Moses' footsteps.

From its premiere performances on, the film has been receiving extraordinary acclaim for its awe-inspiring re-creations of the building of the Pharaoh's treasure city, the Plagues, the Exodus, the Pillar of Fire, the etching of the Commandments in the stone of Sinai by the fiery finger of God and the miracle of the parting of the Red Sea.

At October 31 there were 115 women registered for employment and only 16 job vacancies listed. These included two bookkeepers, one general office clerk, one sales clerk, one waitress, eight charwomen and domestics, two helpers in a poultry processing plant and one cook.

A year ago, on October 31, there were 143 women registered and 12 job vacancies listed. At the end of last month, there were 261 men registered for work and no current vacancies listed. A year ago the unemployed figure was 133.

Of the 261 men registered, there are 27 under 20 years of age; 127 in the 20-44 age group; 81 in the 45-64 group, and 27 in the 65 or over group.

Unemployment On Increase

Unemployment in Kelowna, especially among men, is considerably more than a year ago, according to Alex Haig, manager of the local National Employment office.

Number of persons registered for employment at the end of October was 376, an even 100 more than registered at the same time in 1954.

This number is expected to be increased sharply this month as packing houses close down and men are laid off the Kelowna Bridge project.

Kelowna's Employment Advisory Committee will be meeting shortly to complete plans for the winter employment campaign. Posters are being distributed urging the public to have jobs done now when the labor force is available, rather than putting it off until the spring and summer when workmen are at a premium.

THIS DUCK WON'T HEAD SOUTHWARD

EDMONTON (CP) — While inspecting his land, Alfred Neuman, an Edmonton district farmer, found one duck that wasn't going to fly south for the winter.

Mr. Neuman freed the duck, frozen in the ice on a slough, and after examining it he found that it had been hatched without a right wing.

The duck recovered its strength after a few days of food and shelter and Mr. Neuman decided to keep it as a pet.

Free Nations' Stand Outlined By British P.M.

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan told the British House of Commons yesterday the main purpose of the declaration he signed with President Eisenhower in Washington last week is "to establish the principle of the interdependence of the countries of the free world."

"We shall seek to secure the participation of all our allies and the support of the other free nations in a common partnership. Thereby the resources of the free world can most effectively be used in the maintenance of the interests of all."

Macmillan, who stopped in Ottawa on his way back to London, said the American and British governments, "ready to subside to the principle of interdependence and to join in the common effort to make it effective."

Germany Thanks RCN For Rescue Of 861 Prisoners From Atlantic

KIEL, Germany (AP) — West Germany has officially thanked the Royal Canadian Navy for its rescue of 861 shipwrecked Germans and Italians in 1940.

Rear-Admiral Bernard Rogge, as expressed West Germany's gratitude to Canadian Capt. Boulton, commander of a squadron of three destroyers now making a courtesy call here.

The rescue was accomplished by the destroyer St. Laurent after German submarine sank the British ship Andora Star July 2, 1940. The Andora was carrying 2,000 German and Italian internees to Canada.

Development Of Two Planes Will Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Peckham said the government has decided to continue development work on the supersonic CF-105 Arrow jet interceptor and the air-to-air guided missile Sparrow for at least another year.

Mr. Peckham said he was not in a position to give the cost of the development work in the year ahead.

The Arrow, has not yet flown. The Sparrow is a U.S. developed missile which the government plans to have manufactured in Canada.

Admiral Rogge said: "Only through the courageous and selfless action of the crew and ship's commander, in spite of the danger of German submarines, could 861 victims be saved. The German people and especially the survivors of the Andora Star will not forget this rescue action."

Rogge delivered his message of thanks at a reception for officers of the three visiting Canadian destroyers, the St. Laurent, the Nootka and the Saguenay.

The St. Laurent here now is the second Canadian ship of this name and not the one which performed the 1940 rescue.

Urges Pensions Be Removed From "The Political Arena"

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. James Sinclair says federal old age pensions should be removed from "the political arena" and in future be adjusted automatically.

The former Liberal fisheries minister said in the Commons Thursday night that pension increases, instead of being used as "a bribe to the electorate," should be tied to rises in living costs.

He suggested that if this were done, the present upward trend in prices would mean an automatic annual increase of three per cent.

Mr. Sinclair spoke on a resolution preliminary to government legislation to increase the federal old age security pensions, paid to all 70 and over, by $9 a month to $55.

Mr. Sinclair's suggestion was echoed in varying degrees by members of other opposition parties.

PWA Opens West Air Schedule

VANCOUVER — Points between Edmonton and Regina are now points-of-call on a regular scheduled service by Pacific Western Airlines, commencing today.

Lloydminster, North Battleford, Prince Albert, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw are the other points served on a schedule which, for the time being, calls for two flights daily out of each point.

With commencement of service Russ Baker, president and managing director of PWA stated that the schedule now in effect is subject to change as rapidly as demands for service justify an increase in frequency of flights.

In growth and diversity of air services PWA has shattered all previous aviation records to become Canada's third largest airline. The company today operates 95 aircraft, including 14 helicopters, and employs 127 pilots, comprising a staff of over 650 employees.

Former Oyama Orchardist Dies At Shaughnessy

John Daniel Quine, who operated a fruit farm at Oyama for over 30 years, and whose home has been in Kelowna for the past 15 years, died last night at Shaughnessy Military Hospital in Vancouver after a lengthy illness. He was 87 years of age.

His late residence was at 274 Lake Avenue, where his wife, Florence Jane Quine survives. A daughter, Mrs. Alwyn Weddell, resides across the street.

He farmed at Oyama from 1911 until he retired in 1942. Born at Douglas, Isle of Man, he went to sea as a youth, working for his father who had a shipping business. But he soon gave this up and came to Vancouver. A short time later he moved to Nanaimo and while there helped form the Doris Lodge, A.F. and A.M., as a charter member.

MILITARY CROSS
At the outbreak of World War I he enlisted immediately. He was living in Oyama at the time, and went overseas with the 11th Canadian Mounted Rifles. In England he, along with the 4th Battalion, CEF, and saw action in many battles at the front.

Mr. Quine was awarded the Military Cross but never talked about how he won it. He was discharged with the rank of major and came back to his farm at Oyama.

An ardent sportsman and outdoorsman, he spent as much time as he could at fishing, hunting and golf. For many years he was an active member of the Kelowna Golf Club. He was also a member of the Canadian Legion.

Besides his wife, he leaves one son, Charles W. Quine, San Francisco, three daughters, Miss Dorothy Quine, New Westminster, Mrs. S. H. (Marjorie) Gibb, Honolulu, and Mrs. A. (Edith) Weddell, Kelowna; five grandchildren; three great-grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Gertrude Gibb, Brisbane, Australia.

Funeral service will be held in Vancouver at the Bell Funeral Home, at 3:30 p.m. Monday. Cremation will follow and the ashes returned to Kelowna. Kelowna Funeral Directors have been entrusted with the arrangements.

Possible Heart Cure Indicated

CLEVELAND (AP) — A New York doctor said Thursday his studies indicate he has found a possible method of preventing heart attacks and hardening of the arteries—the No. 1 killer in the United States.

The method, he said, involves the control of fat in blood. Too much blood fat generally is recognized as the main condition related to heart attacks and hardening of the arteries.

Gittman's studies, which were carried on with humans and animals, indicate that "by giving Vitamin E in very large doses he could reduce the level of blood fat in a high percentage of cases in humans."

The most readily available source of Vitamin E, he said, is wheat germ oil.

Nobel Prize In Physics Awarded To Two Chinese

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Two young Chinese-born nuclear scientists working in the United States won the 1957 Nobel prize in physics yesterday for removing important obstacles to the understanding of the functions of the atom and the universe.

The joint winners of the $42,000 award are Dr. Chen Ning Yang, 34 year old professor of physics at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N.J., and Dr. Tsung Dao Lee, 30, professor of physics at Columbia University in New York who is on leave and also at the Princeton Institute.

The citation of the Swedish academy of science said the pair were honored "for their profound investigations of the so-called laws of parity, which have led to important discoveries regarding sub-atomic particles."

Tight Money Policy Shows Sign Of Easing

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada appears to be moving more quickly than the United States to ease its so-called anti-inflationary "tight money" policy, a move that may eventually mean an increased supply of loans at lower interest rates.

Finance Minister Fleming in the Commons said "yesterday members should be gratified to know that interest rates on government securities 'have been easing of late'."

In the last month or so demand for government bonds has increased and yields have declined. The Bank of Canada's interest rate has slipped to 4.05 per cent from the high last August of 4.33.

There have been increases in the country's money supply. Cash and bank deposits held by the public have increased to about $11,400,000,000, up $100,000,000 from last year.

All these factors, said officials, indicate a slow but definite decline in the tight-money policy. They suggested this trend likely will continue and increase to the point where it might mean lower interest rates to the average Canadian.

Couple Murdered In Seattle Auto

SEATTLE (AP) — A man and woman were found shot to death in a stalled automobile here Thursday night and investigators said it appeared to be a double murder.

Coroner's deputies identified the pair as Samuel Ferguson, about 35, and Lizzie Hall, 32, wife of Willie W. Hall. Ferguson was shot in the chest and Mrs. Hall was killed by a bullet in the head.

Detectors said no weapon was found on the scene.

Mrs. Cecil Randolph, a nurse, told police she was returning from work when she heard "a bang." She said that a few moments later she saw the car coast into the street from an alley.

Mrs. Randolph said she went to the auto and found Ferguson slumped over the wheel and the woman lying partly outside the car door.
